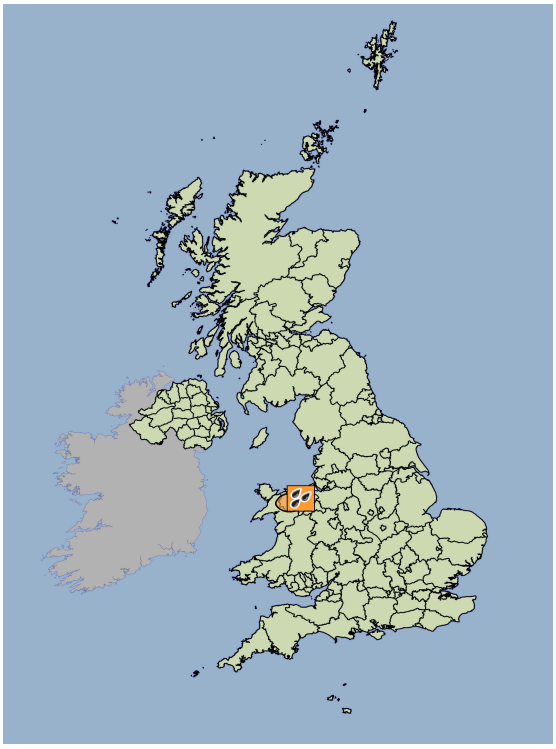
National Severe Weather Warning Service



Chief Forecasters Assessment
The band of rain, which has been slow-moving across parts of north Wales for some 24 hours now, will edge north for a time this afternoon, before returning across the area this evening. Despite the slight lull, high rainfall rates during the evening will probably mean more medium impacts from flooding in this area.

The Met Office have issued an Amber Warning of Rain

Valid from 11:35 on Sat, 26th Dec 2015 until 23:00 on Sat, 26th Dec 2015

Heavy rain is expected to continue at times for the rest of Boxing Day across northwest Wales, although easing off for a time this afternoon. Given totals so far over Snowdonia, and reported impacts, be prepared for further medium impacts from flooding.
